Introduction

The Last Mile Infrastructure Group aims to identify and mitigate the risk of Modern Slavery occurring within its business and supply chains. The Last Mile Infrastructure Group has a responsibility to understand the risks in its business and supply chains and has a specific Modern Slavery Act Policy, which is approved by the Group’s Chief Executive Officer and compliance with it is monitored by the Group’s Risk and Compliance function.

Employees

The Last Mile Infrastructure Group supports fundamental human rights and is committed to a safe workplace that values equal opportunity, and that is free from discrimination, harassment and victimisation.

The Group has robust policies and procedures concerning employment screening (including work eligibility checks and confirming that prospective employees are in possession of their own identity documents, including valid passports), employment conditions and appropriate workplace behaviour.

All staff are expected to abide by the spirit, as well as the requirements of the Group's policies and procedures concerning Modern Slavery, Whistleblowing, Anti-Bribery and Corruption and Equal Opportunities. Employees are encouraged to report breaches of these policies to their line managers and/or senior executives in the Group. All employees have access to a confidential 24/7 Employee Assistance Programme.

Suppliers

The Last Mile Infrastructure Group's business is both office and field-based with the main supply chain categories comprising of:

- manufacturers and suppliers of construction materials for electric, gas, water and wastewater connections;
- suppliers of plant, vehicles and equipment;
- sub-contractors providing specialist construction and emergency response services;
- professional services in relation to utilities networks and connections as well as financial, legal, tax and regulatory advice; and
- recruitment agencies.

We use a variety of local and national suppliers to source goods, services, equipment and human resource for the operation of the business. While we operate within the UK's construction industry, which is considered a sector to be at higher risk of Modern Slavery, based on our 'well-known' supply chain profile and the industry sector in which we specifically operate, the risk to the Group is considered to be moderate.

We continue to review the risk that our supply chains present and whilst we consider our exposure to Modern Slavery to be moderate, we expect our suppliers and sub-contractors to demonstrate a zero-tolerance approach to the exploitation of people.

The principal way in which we approach managing the risks of Modern Slavery is by using the procedures set out in our Policy, including due diligence of our supply chain to establish what steps, measures and practices they have implemented to prevent Modern Slavery occurring in their organisations and ensuring that contracts contain provisions allowing for automatic termination for breach of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (on a risk adjusted basis).

Customers

The Last Mile Infrastructure Group is committed to ensuring that compliance with the Modern Slavery Act 2015 is at the heart of both its upstream and downstream supply chains and, to that end, is working to include compliance with the Modern Slavery Act 2015 in all of its customer vetting processes.
